What's new on the drugs and alcohol front in recent weeks?

6 Substance misuse information services and publications

Where do you go for information and training?

8 Substance misuse services: how will clients be cared for in future?

The National Treatment Agency's Models of Care approach is being introduced in England right now. Therapeutic counselling has a role to play in these new plans, says Richard Bryant-Jefferies

13 The specialist alcohol counsellor in primary care

Dr Di Ackerley is a GP who values the holistic approach counsellors bring to substance misuse patients

16 Dual diagnosis patients: the need for an integrated approach to therapy

When substance misuse coexists with another mental health difficulty the patient may be pushed from pillar to post or treated in a very fragmented way. Why not have a Dual Diagnosis Therapist? David Voyle states his case

18 Understanding your employment contract

As part of the concordat between FHCP and UNISON, Jon Richards of UNISON explains the basis of NHS employment contracts, for employees and for self-employed contractors

25 Challenging 'relativity'

What's benchmarking all about and should counselling services be subject to performance appraisal, asks John Mellor-Clark
